Beach Blvd. This [illegible] mansion set amid its stately [illegible] with myriads of flowers and [illegible] enhancing its beauty, was a per[illegible] place for a perfect day. [illegible] M. Mr. and [illegible] received the guests. [illegible] were assisted by Dr. and Mrs. [illegible] Have, Mrs. A. G. [illegible], [illegible] Joseph Kern and Mrs. Roy [illegible]. The charming patio was a [illegible] of interest, as it was here that [illegible] guests were served cham[illegible] punch by Dr. Have.

[illegible] next sojurn was to the Yacht [illegible] where luncheon was served by [illegible] Garden Club. Mrs. Leo Seal was [illegible] of the luncheon and more [illegible] 225 partook of it. [illegible] visitors entered the main [illegible] they were greeted by two [illegible] Mrs. Tom Schafer and Mrs. [illegible]

[illegible] Pfeiffer was the photo[illegible] the occasion.

[illegible] interesting to note is the [illegible] books from the various [illegible] and from the Yacht [illegible] states, as well as Canada, were represented, including Illinois, Texas, New Jersey, New Hampshire, New York, Iowa, Montana, Colorado, Ohio, California, Tennessee, Louisiana and Virginia. Mississippi was well represented with visitors from Jackson, Granada, Vicksburg and Natchez as well as from the Coast area. A chartered bus brought 48 in one group from New Orleans, and another group of about 20 came from Slidell, La.

Following lunch the travelers proceeded to the lush beauty of St. Augustine's Seminary. Here the hundreds of varieties of camellias and the numberless azaleas were a riot of colored magnificance that bedazzled the eyes. The choir of the Seminary sang from a station in front of the unique Grotto, which never fails to entrance visitors. Mrs. Ed Heath Sr. was hostess for the Garden Club at these gardens.

She was assisted by Mrs. Carol Murphy, Mrs. Harold Keefe, Miss Mary Hale, Mrs. Elizabeth Yates, Miss Kathleen Renshaw and Mrs. Wayne Ducomb and Mrs. Frank Martin.

Traveling the highway to Nicholson Ave., the tour turned north, to a perfect climax with a visit to the magnificent estate of Dr. Emmett Lee Irwin, "Darwood on the Jourdan." Amid sheltering woodland lanes, fiery with splashes of azaleas and many varities of wild flowers, as well as cunningly planted cultivated beauties, the pilgrims wended their way to emerge suddenly on the stately formal gardens, which surrounded the home of Dr. Irwin. All types of flora are planted on this vast estate. The lovely colonial home the charming rustic rumpus house, with its outdoor and indoor barbeque pits, its hand hewn beams and furnishings, were things of beauty to all present.

In the absence of Dr. Irwin, who unfortunately was not able to be present, James Normand acted as host. Mrs. Normand and Mrs. Alden Mauffray received at the rumpus house, and Mrs. Horace Kergosien and Mrs. Ben Hille were hostesses at the main house. Open house and open garden were the order of the day, and the many visitors left with a knowledge of true Southern Hospitality. Liquid refreshments, to suit the taste of the most fastidious, were served as well as canapes and Hors d'ouevres.

For the next five days the Gulf Coast will still be playing host to the many hundreds of visitors. Bay St. Louis can well be proud of the hospitality offered from the above mentioned citizens and the many workers of the Garden Culb whose efforts made such a day possible.

Mrs. Charles R. Beyer was the General Chairman of the Pilgrimage for Bay St. Louis and Waveland.

LUTHER DAVIS TALKS ON 16th SECTION LANDS AT LWV MEETING THURS.

Luther Davis, Director of Social Security Board, Hattiesburg, was guest speaker at the meeting of the League of Women Voters Thursday night, Feb. 26 at the Youth Center.

Davis, who earned his Masters at Mississippi Southern on a thesis written on 16th section lands, has compiled the first authentic material on Mississippi 16th Section School Lands.

A history of these lands was given by Davis, and an explanation of the existence of lieu lands.

"Original plan of 16th section lands was to have to sections in each township," Davis said. Each section contains 640 acres. Schools were to be built on portions of this land, and the remainder used to support the schools."

He further explained that due to "manipulations," the income from these lands "is not what it is supposed to be. "

He pointed out that should Mississippi lose possession of other lands in the state, there would be enough in the 16th section land to give 6 lots to every man, woman and child in the State of Mississippi, and with proportunate income, they should realize 1/36 of the total state income from said lands.

Davis stated that sixty-two other counties in Mississippi own Lieu Lands in Hancock County.

The lands may be leased, but it is against the law for the leasee to cut or sell timber from these lands. The timber may be cut and sold only by the Board of Supervisors of the County and the County Supervisor of Education. Money derived from such income goes into school funds, and can only be dispensed with the permission of a 16th Section Board of Trustees.

It is cumpulsory to advertise bids for timber, but no for oil.

Discrepancies in sales and leases on 16th Section and Lieu Lands as compared with the market value were pointed out. Lieu Lands sold in Hancock County "averaged $4.00 per acre," Davis said, and some were leased for "as low as 15c per acre."

It is unconstitutional to sell any of the 16th Section Lands, but an amendment in 1942 permitted the sale of Lieu Lands out of the Country to which they belonged.

The meeting was opened by the League President, Mrs. Paul Miller, who asked for a motion to dispense business so that the entire time might be devoted to the address given by Davis.

1953 RED CROSS DRIVE GETTING IN FULL SWING THROUGHOUT NATION

When people help one another voluntarily, the whole fabric or human society is fortified by a strength that comes from deep in the hearts of men and women of good will.

The Red Cross serves as a channel for this strength and good will.

Across the nation, hundreds of thousands of volunteer helping hands are ready to serve neighbors in time of disaster, to help neighbors' sons and daughters with the problems and emergencies that arise during military service, to help keep a life-giving stream of blood flowing to civilian hospitals here at home and to military hospitals in this country and overseas.

These helping hands are kept active—and in readiness—by the generous support given to the Red Cross by the American people. The hands work tirelessly and gladly because the hearts behind them have faith and determination; but they need materials, equipment, techincal guidance, and funds to make their work possible.

Although there are 3,730 American Red Cross chapters, there is only one Red Cross, its program is carried on partly in local communities and partly on a national and international level.

The national organization acts in behalf of the chapters in carrying forward the national and international aspects of the program, using a portion of the funds raised by each chapter in the annual fund campaign. Over two-thirds of this portion is returned to local communities in the form of services, supplies and materials.

This year—again in the month of March—the American Red Cross appeals for the funds to carry on its program for another year.

That program is of vital importance to the American people. In addition to the three universally recognized major services—helping disaster victims, serving the armed forces, and providing blood for the injured and sick—the Red Cross program includes the training of thousands of men and women in first aid, simple nursing skills, and water safety.

Through Junior Red Cross and college activities, the Red Cross draws the youth of America into activities, showing them how to help themselves and their young neighbors.

Such a program needs no justification of war or emergency to demonstrate its value. It proves its value year after year by saving lives, relieving anxiety and distress, and reducing human suffering. But in a time of international tension and uncertainty the Red Cross program assumes even greater significance. It becomes an indispensable participant in the drama of contemporary life. Its volunteers and all those whose donations [illegible] [illegible] program of mercy.

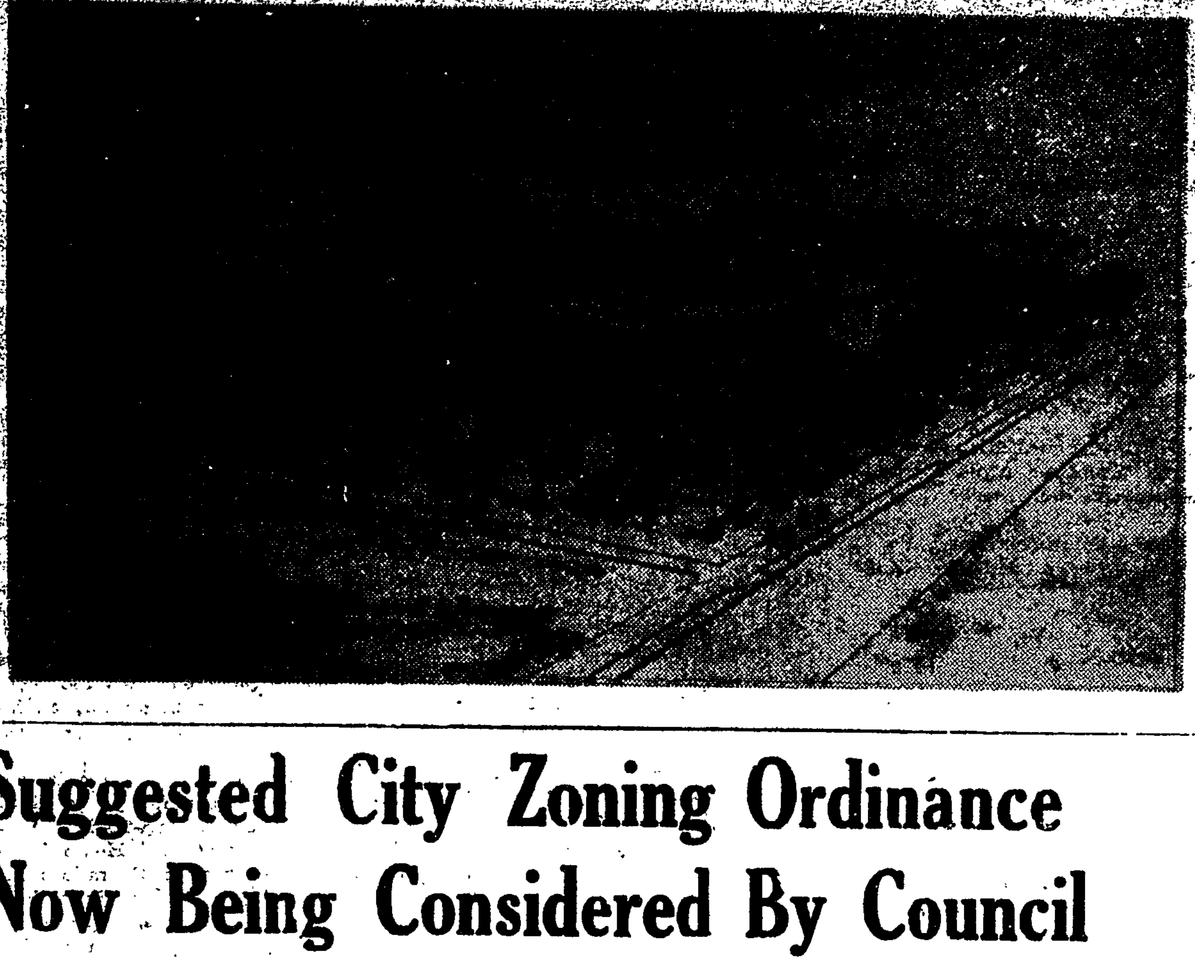
Seek $75000 Bond Issue



No Additional Levy Will Be Needed, City Officials Say

The State Building Commission today approved a $38,000 grant for an addition to the Valena C. Jones school.

The commission previously had granted $12,000 toward the construction of a six room elementary building for whites at Central school.

Local school officials yesterday released the following statement regarding issuance of bonds for the construction of an addition to Valena C. Jones Colored School and for the erection of an elementary building for the Central school:

"If you are asked to sign a petition authorizing the issuance of bonds for the construction of an addition to the Valena C. Jones Colored School and for the elementary school building for the Central School here are the facts for your consideration.

No. 1.— Section 8, House Bill 74 of the Mississippi laws of 1950 authorizes the issuance of bonds for the construction or additions to school buildings if the majority of the qualified electors of the municipal school district will authorize by petition the governing officials to issue these bonds for such purpose.

"N. 2— By this peition you will authorize the governing officials of Bay St. Louis to issue bonds in the amount of $75,000 for the addition to the Valena C. Jones School and the elementary building at the Central School.

"No. 3.— The total cost of construction of these two projects will be $152,724. There is being allocated for these two projects from the State and Federal Government. It will be necessary for local authorities to supply $75,000 by a bond issue.

"No. 4.— It has been determined by the City officials that due to the fact that the bonded indebtedness of the City has been reduced during the past four years to such an extent that this $75,000 issue can be financed with no additional tax levy. It is hoped that this bond issue may be passed within a reasonable time and that the construction may go forward at an early date."

Attending the building commission meeting were Supt. of Public Schools S. J. Ingram, County Superintendent of Education E. E. Breland, Eugene Mogabgab and Commissioners C. J. Glover and Sylvan Ladner.

Suggested City Zoning Ordinance Now Being Considered By Council

Would Restrict Zone From deMontluzin St North To City Limits

A suggested Ordinance by a group of citizens of Bay St. Louis was presented to the Commission Council of the city on Wednesday, March 4, at the city hall. The ordinance woulld restrict the construction of any further business in an area covering the north side of De Montluzin Ave., westerly to the easterly boundary line of N. Second Street, thence Northerly to the northern boundary line of the Corporation Limits of Bay St. Louis, which area would include at least 1,000 feet back from the Beach Road.

The Commission Council by a unanimous vote tentatively approved the Ordinance, subject to certain revisions and subject to sufficient protests being filed or presented to the Commission Council by all citizens, taxpayers, property owners and other parties in interest at a public meeting to be held at a time and place to be announced later.

It was the consensus of all members of the Commission Council that no further building permits would be issued by the Council in this area until the Ordinance is finally disposed of by the Council, or unless by a Court Order compelling the council to issue a Permit.

This proposed Ordinance, when placed in the proper form, will be published at least four times in a newspaper in the city giving the public notice to be present at the date to be fixed for the final hearing of the proposed Ordinance.

GAMMA GLOBULIN IS GIVING MANKIND NEW WEAPON AGAINST POLIO

Recent experiments have given mankind a powerful new weapon against the paralyzing effect of poliomyelitis—gamma globulin, a derivative of blood.

To supply the serum so children may be spared a lifetime of handicap, the Red Cross, at the request of the Office of Defense Mobilization, is rapidly expanding its defense blood collections.

That means a difficult and costly job of blood procurement and processing—a task that will cost the Red Cross $7,000,000 this year alone and has made it necessary to increase the 1953 fund goal to $93,000,000.

Gamma globulin contains antibodies which attack the polio virus. One dose will protect an individual against the paralyzing effects of polio for from one to five weeks. Working round-the-clock at full capacity, biological laboratories which are equipped to produce gamma globulin can provide only a part of the serum needed in time for the next epidemic onslaught. If it follows pattern, it has been established that two million children in those areas may be exposed.

Since gamma globulin also will be needed for measles modification and prevention of infectious hepatitis, the need will far exceed the supply. Thus, to provide equitable distribution, the Office of Defense Mobilization will establish an allocating agency. The Red Cross will not have this responsibility.

And in addition to blood for gamma globulin, the Red Cross must continue to collect it to meet the day-by-day blood needs of civilian hospitals, of the Korean wounded, and the nation's plasma reserve. In all, the Red Cross—and private blood banks cooperating with it—must collect blood at the rate of five million pints a year.

How successful this effort will be depends upon your generosity—generosity in giving money as well as blood. For both are needed if the job is to be done—if blood and its derivatives and other Red Cross services are to be ready where they are needed, when they are needed.

This year, more generously than ever, answer the call of your Red Cross.

This is why bites on the face or neck are dangerous. The location is close to the brain. No time to start this long drawn out process.

The problem that bothers your family physician is that he is using the most dangerous of all vaccines and may be facing a tragedy. Several patients were lost last year in one of our sister states through the use of rabies virus. We have a doctor in this state who has been paralyzed for twenty years, caused by the use of this vaccine. So you see that the doctor is on a spot every time he has a patient exposed to rabies. He alone must make the decision, ever mindful of what may happen if he does or what can happen if he does not.

Since doctors have to face a hazard either way they choose, why not do away with it altogether or cut down the number of exposures to the very minimum.

The rabies control program has been organized in Hancock and Pearl River counties as one unit. One control officer has charge of both counties. The work in Pearl River County is about completed for the present and will begin in Hancock County some time in April.

See that your county health department has the complete cooperation of every citizen in the county. If we can do as well here as was done in Pearl River County, the program will be a success.

Then came the speech of Secretary of Agriculture Benson in Chicago referring to farm supports as "disaster insurance." The resulting cries of distress and indignation from farm state Members of Congress led to the President's taking occasion at his first news conference to point out that the problem of falling farm prices was an inherited one dating back at least two years.

The extension of the reorganization act was the occasion for yet a third jerk. Through some mix-up in signals the Republican controlled House Committee on Government Operations reported out a bill giving Republican President Eisenhower weaker powers to reorganize the Government, in keeping with his pledge to eliminate waste, than those enjoyed by Democratic President Truman. Strangely enough, the Democrats on the Committee lined up solidly for giving President Eisenhower the stronger powers. The crossed wires were untangled, however, before the bill reached the Floor, and the measure passed overwhelmingly.

This past week the first appropriation bill of the session came up, a bill to provide for deficiencies in the operation of the Government that have occurred since the regular appropriations for the Departments were passed. The appropriations Committee cut the budget estimates from $2,313,719,590 to $904,672,920, but in its laudable zeal for economy it unfortunately used the meat ax approach by eliminating all funds for schools in defense impacted areas.

REPORT OF SERVICE TO CHILDREN BY COUNTY WELFARE DEPARTMENT

BY HANCOCK COUNTY WELFARE DEPARTMENT

During the year January 1 through December 31, 1952, the Child Welfare Division of the Department of Public Welfare received 56 requests for services which affected 156 children.

Thirty of the original fifty-six are still active cases in which continued service is being rendered.

The following requests were made in the number of cases given:

1. Mother or father absent from home due to desertion, illness, in jail, etc.	8
2. Delinquency	3
3. Neglect	3
4. Runaway child	4
5. Financial assistance, free lunches, clothing, groceries, etc.	17
6. Medical Aid	7
7. Child in home of non-relative	1
8. Uncontrollable child	3
9. Mentally Disturbed child	1
10. Unmarried mother	3
11. Aid in securing employment for teen ager	1
12. Placement of children outside their own homes	4
13. Out of town inquiry	3

Most of these requests for services are received from parents or relatives, but also they are received from the school, Health Department, Chancery Clerk, Red Cross, Sheriff, Churches, out of town agencies, and many others.

At the present one of the biggest programs in child welfare is the foster home program. A foster boarding home is a family home in which the parents have met certain specifications of the department to be approved for giving care to children. This involves adequate space and housing, good health and a temperament which will enable foster parents to love children who, because of their past troubles, may be difficult to care for. These foster parents receive a small board payment, ranging from $20 to $40 a month, depending on the needs of the child. Of this amount, 25 per cent is paid by local funds and 75 per cent by matched state and federal funds.

During this past year Hancock County had 14 children in foster care at different times. A total of $769 was spent by the County for the board alone of these children during the year. In addition the following amounts were spent on these children for various purposes:

Clothing	$532.91
Medicine	67.67
School Supplies	6.50
Camping	44.75
Transportation	9.75
Christmas	35.98
	$697.56

Including the $769.00 for boarding care this would mean $1,466.56 was spent on Hancock County foster children alone during the past year. The Child Welfare Department now has seven children in foster care. Five of these children were removed from their own homes because of neglect by the parents and have been in foster homes for two years. The other two children were placed in foster homes by the youth court because of delinquency.

In addition to the above amount, $351.86 was spent on children other than foster children. In this category the money was distributed as follows:

Clothing	$ 34.84
Medical needs	125.49
Groceries	189.53
Transportation	2.00
	$351.86

Under House Bill 812 Hancock County Welfare Department is eligible to receive a certain amount of money to be appropriated by the County Board of Supervisors. The amount of money granted each month is left to the discretion of the Board of Supervisors and at the present time the Welfare Department is receiving $100 a month.

This money is used for foster homes care, and for medical care when this care is not of long duration.

The people in the county are becoming more and more aware of these services and are beginning to increase their requests, so that it has been necessary for the Department to dig deep into a surplus they were able to accumulate when the program first went into effect. In some instances parents or relatives of foster children have contributed to their support while in foster homes, but all are not mentally and physically able to do so.

In the Public Assistance Division and under the Aid of Dependent Children Program, a monthly average of 17[illegible] children have received $19,241 through grants during 1952.

The Brownies entertained with a Brownie Play, and a number of songs.

After the girls were pinned, the friendship circle was formed and everyone present joined in.

Refreshments were served.

Library Report Given To County Council On Youth and Children

The following is a report from the Hancock County Library to the Hancock County Council on Youth and Children:

The Bay St. Louis-Hancock County Library expended, in the past year, $285.50 for books. Of that amount, $208 was spent for 134 children's books, the remaining $77.50 for 31 adult books.

In addition to these, 100 adult books were donated to the library.

On the Bookmobile's four visits to Hancock County during the year, they loaned 231 books, 75 per cent of which were children's books. Fifty-four additional books were borrowed from the Mississippi Library Commission for individual use of the borrowers.

The year's circulation for youth was 5468 books, and adults, 2218.

Several Boy Scouts were taught how to bind books, which enabled them to win a Scout Merit Badge.

Jeron King Criswell was once a farm boy who worked on his uncle's newspaper in Princeton, Indiana. He is today a writer, speaker and TV performer, who earns a living making predictions.

One of his latest predictions is that "there will soon be, on the market, a hearing aid designed like a lady's ear-ring." Good heavens, Jeron, you're way behind time. The aids such as you predict have been out (or at least designed and under manufacture) for a year or more!

Criswell, in the same column, predicts that, "in the future you will be discussing the new craze of square-dancing to New Orleans swing music." IN THE FUTURE, Jeron—for heaven's sakes, what do you think people have been discussing for the past five years?

The "Brain" also predicts "new ranch oak furniture combined with Indian blanket pattern wallpaper and resert sand rugs."

Well, perhaps on that score he is correct. He need only to follow the line at the manufacturing houses to learn that, but we sincerely hope houses do not go Indian blanket wallpaper crazy or desert sand rug wild. What a bore that would be!

Farther on Criswell quotes Nostradamus who predicted in 1515. that "The world will come to a sorry state in the Twentieth Century, for by that time it will be forced to throw off the yoke of the leaders who led it into its present situation. The so-called leaders of the great countries will be forgotten quickly."

Criswell adds to the above: "This prophecy is working out. Of the great leaders of the Second World War only one remains—Russia's Stalin!"

Now, there's a boy who really predicted something! (Nostra.) Four hundred and thirty-eight years ago!

This may sound like sour grapes—but we prefer, by far, to "do over" old hats rather than buy new ones. If there is one job we detest, it is to shop for hats. Never are our defects more prominent when we sit, sometimes an hour, before a mirror, with all the world looking on (or so it seems) trying on hats with every possible lineage and personality, only to [illegible] of "doing over" a hat [illegible] worn it for several seasons, [illegible] someone tell [illegible] what an attractive creation it is. It flatters the economic streak in us!

But not so, Mamie! It is said that on the campaign trip the First Lady took fifty hats along! After arriving in New York, and prior to moving into the White House, she bought a dozen more spring creations to begin the season.

One wonders what becomes of them all when the lady tires of them. It would be interesting to follow the trail of one of them and see. Sort of like the story of the dress suit, remember?

Having a hat-conscious first lady in the White House is like money in the bank to the United States millinery industry—for, as goes the president's wife, so goes Mrs. America.

It stands to reason, then, that the New York wholesale millinery district is jubilant over reports of Mamie Eisenhower's enthusiasm over hats.

The hatless threat is always present with the hat industry. The hat makers have been frantic more than once when some fashion celebrity happened to be caught with their hat off and a photographer present and other women decided it was chic to follow the leader.

Even the Duchess of Windsor has done little for the millinery industry (and she one of the top ten best-dressed women in the country) since she clings to little beanies that are so small one can hardly see them.

We came across some Christmas perfume that we hadn't exactly gotten friendly with. It seemed a shame to wast it since it was an expensive brand so we tried it out in our bath water before retiring.

Diluted, it was not bad at all. We rather enjoyed it and felt somewhat like the Egyptian ladies who lolled around in perfumed oils with frankincense and myrrh floating through the air.

We also tried some out in the commode and found that it permeated the whole house with a delicacy which it did not seem to have on us.

Just an idea about using it up if you have any that you cannot stand being intimate with.

Reminds us that it will pretty soon be time to change our brand to something lighter. We found something at one of the local stores last summer that has a rather misleading name, since it is called "Conquest" and smells for all the world like fresh carnations.

Some will say with deliberateness: "I use the same scent all the year." That is a mistake, from a seasonable standpoint as well as from one of monotony, and personal benefaction.

It is not good to get into habits. Not even the habit of a good scent. Who was it that said "There is no such thing as a GOOD habit." Whoever it was was very wise, and knew the power of change to offset ennui and repetition.

[illegible] poppy seeds is not a new one in this country, at least it isn't in our particular family.

In my own household the poppy seed is used frequently and in many different ways. Often we add the seed to the sandwiches or as a garnish for salads, and never do we make fruit slaw without the addition of a few generous pinches of the delicacy.

The seed adds a subtle flavor which excites curiosity and interest, and takes ordinary flavors out of the doldrums.

Originating with women of German, Polish, Hungarian, Czechoslovakian and Lithuanian origins in this country poppy fillings are now gaining wider acceptance.

Poppy seeds have a nut-like flavor and have a high oil content. When ground or mashed they mix well with honey, sugar and many different fruit [illegible] A tasty poppy [illegible] date, [illegible] rolls, [illegible] cookies, tarts and [illegible] as follows:

½ cup milk

Put the fruit through the food grinder. Scald the milk and add the seeds. Bring to a boil and cook gently two to three minutes, stirring constantly, until the milk is almost absorbed. Add the sugar, honey, rind, fruit, and butter. Stir well and bring to a boil

ROCK MUSIC-MAKERS AMAZE MANY WITH UNIQUE STYLE

BY DAVID TRUETEL

For the past months many eyes have turned to watch the rapid progress of a group of lively musicians. This group popularly known as the Rock Orchestra has shown a considerable amount of accomplishment for their brief existence.

This circus of music makers with Brother Martial as ringmaster has spent almost two years in winter quarters preparing an organization of superb quality. As is the case with all top rhythm artists, practice is the keynote of success. And the red and black boys of musicland used much of their spare time pursuing this end. It was tough and at times most discouraging; but they were determined to make good.

Most of the nerve-racking chaos took place last year. For the start of this year's school term found the Rockstars reaching for the touch of professionality and a unique style. But nevertheless even with a sound start on the journey of achievement the distance yet to be covered looms far, even into the clouds of perfection. This was the substance of a reminder by Brother Martial, the severest critic and an ardent admirer of the band.

The week-end preceding the Mardi Gras holidays started the wheels of fortune slowly turning for the Rockstars. That Friday the orchestra was engaged to play for the annual carnival ball at S.J.A. Saturday night they played for the Knights of Columbus dance. Both "jobs" were enjoyed and promises of future engagements followed.

The orchestra has a large repertory of favorite dance tunes both old and new and is constantly adding the latest ballads to its store.

Numbering 21 pieces, these producers of exotic music have much in store for their future audiences.

Lopez is a past commander of the local American Legion post and a veteran of World War II. He attended Loyola University at New Orleans and later played professional football before beginning law practice.

The Second Judicial District is comprised of Harrison, Jackson, Stone George and Hancock Counties.

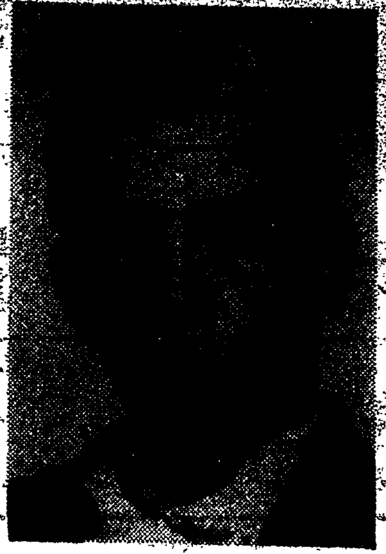
"Enoch Arden" is a piano melodrama composed by the great German modern composer, Richard Strauss, in the early 1900's. It is based on the familiar Alfred Lord Tennyson's poem by the same name. "Enoch Arden" will be narrated by Chet Leaming of New Orleans, with piano accompaniment by Laurence Oden.

Chet Leaming is well known for his professional and Little Theatre work in New Orleans. He played the male lead in "Gayden" and "Bernadette."



LAURENCE ODEN

He will be seen shortly in the Gallery Circle Thatre production of "Joan of Lorraine." He has appeared in a number of Television productions and in the motion picture "Panic in the Streets" recently filmed in New Orleans.

"Enoch Arden" was presented last summer by the New Orleans Theatre of Music, which specializes in the unusual. It is hoped that the intimate quality of the Bay St. Louis Little Theatre will provide a proper setting for this interesting work.

As a work, it stands preeminent in its class due to the composer, the poet and the subject matter. It was introduced to the American public by Richard Strauss, then a rising young pianist-composer touring the United States. The Board of Directors of the little Theatre feel they have taken a step in the right direction by offering this outstanding musical event to its members.

CHET LEAMING

Mr. Oden's piano score is a photostat copy from the only known copy in existence. The original was destroyed by bombing during World War II.

It is interesting to note, that recently a professional recording of this work was made in New York by the young Canadian pianist, Gordon Manley, who heard Mr. Oden playing it while he was in New Orleans.

The same staging devices will be employed as in the New Orleans production. This presentation is greatly enhanced by the clever manipulation of lighting effects, handled by Mark Solomon, Camille Shaefer and Robert Scharff.

This performance will not be counted as one of the five scheduled plays. Membership cards will be issued at the Little Theatre the evening of production, or checks for membership may be sent to the Treasurer, Box 91, Bay St. Louis.

BOY SCOUTS TO PRESENT PROGRAM AT BAY HIGH P T A MEETING TUES.

"Children in the Community" will be the theme of the program the Boy Scouts, with Tom Carl in charge, are to present to the Bay High PTA at their regular monthly meeting Tuesday evening, March 10, at 7:30 in the Bay High auditorium. Everyone is urged to attend.

Guests of Little Theatre

Chet Leaming and Laurence Oden, two talented young artists from New Orleans, will be guests of the Bay St. Louis Little Theatre over the week end. During their visit they will present a musical dramatization of "Enoch Arden Sunday evening at the theatre.

[illegible] Fagan is a four-year-old, 400-pound lion, seemingly ferocious but gentle as a lamb with his affectionate owner, Floyd, with whom he does an act in a traveling circus. When Floyd is inducted into the Army, he cannot bear to leave Fagan behind. He takes Fagan with him and hides him in a wooded section on the Army Post.

Here he is subsequently discovered by pretty Hollywood starlet Abby Ames, who has arrived to entertain the soldiers. What follows — the vain attempt upon the part of the Army to find a home for Fagan, the nationwide publicity which gives him a temporary shelter on a farm, his escape and return to his master, and the suspense-packed climax in which the frightened lion is driven to attack both Floyd and the callous animal trainer who has come to take him back to the circus—make for a story which is divided evenly between laughs and dramatic excitement. In the end, both the problems of the lion and its owner are happily resolved. Fagan finds an outlet for his talents as a movie star, while Floyd and Abby find each other.

Janet Leigh offers a delightful performance as the glamorous actress who at first thinks the lion-owning soldier is a fit subject for a psychiatric ward but who comes to admire his deep-seated affection for Fagan.

The gangling Carleton Carpenter is perfectly cast as young Floyd, whose love for his pet brings about a hilarious crisis in Army regulations, while Keenan Wynn adds to the laughs in the role of the typically hard-boiled non-com on whom the burden of disposing of the post's unwelcome guest falls.

Also deserving of stellar honors is Fagan himself. Never in the history of pictures has there been seen so ingratiating and so talented a lion actor.

A historical marker commemorating the first federally-sponsored rural youth organization that marked the beginning of 4-H Club work will be unveiled May 5 at Lexington, Miss. The organization was called the "Corn Club" and was founded in 1907. It was considered a forerunner to the national 4-H movement. Corn clubs spread quickly over the South and helped start a shift from the old one-crop cotton system to diversification, the Agriculture department said.
